Evolving our business model further with AI to realize the regional transformation

Tsutomu Yonemoto

President (Representative Director, Group Chief Executive Officer (CEO))

Using the Mid-term Plan as a stepping stone to the Group’s further advancement

We are now in the final year of our 15th Mid-term Plan “Engagement Bank Group – Phase 1 –,” which began in April 2023. In that time, I perceived that the environment surrounding the region, our customers, and the Group has become more uncertain than ever. In Japan, amid long-term structural changes in society, such as the declining birthrate, aging population, and digitalization trends, rising prices and labor shortages are becoming increasingly serious. Overseas, in addition to shifts in monetary policies in various countries and growing geopolitical risks, factors such as the impact of U.S. tariff policies are further heightening uncertainty about the future. Meanwhile, with the revision of the Bank of Japan’s monetary policy and the advent of “a world with interest rates,” the business environment for the Group has taken a significant turn for the better.

In such an environment, we have pursued a variety of initiatives for the “evolution of the customer-focused business model” that forms our guideline for operations in the Mid-term Plan. As a result, we have generally achieved our financial targets for the final year of the Mid-term Plan a year ahead of schedule. For this reason, we have revised our final year target for consolidated ROE (shareholders’ equity basis) by around 1% from the initial target to above 8%, and the target for consolidated profit by ¥10.0 billion to ¥85.0 billion, and we are accelerating the various measures to reach even greater heights.

In addition, we will work to enhance capital management by using accumulated profit to further strengthen shareholder returns and make strategic investments for the further growth of the Group, in our efforts to bring the hope of all stakeholders to life.

Three area-based growth strategies

The Chiba Bank Group is pursuing growth strategies from three area-specific perspectives, namely “Chiba Prefecture,” “outside Chiba” and “nationwide.”

Firstly, for “Chiba Prefecture,” the Group’s core market, as a regional financial institution, we are committed to the enduring mission of contributing to the further advancement of Chiba Prefecture. We believe that the growth of the Group is indivisible from the sustainable growth of the local economy. We practice “sustainability management” that balances economic value and social value, and we will strengthen our commitment to sustainable growth more than ever.

Chiba Prefecture has an advantageous macro environment in terms of population, economic scale, and other attributes. With the relationships we have cultivated over the years, we have built a strong operating base, in which around 60% of Chiba Prefecture’s population hold accounts with Chiba Bank. Moreover, we will aim to increase our market share not only for deposits and loans, but also all manner of products and services through our efforts toward “Digital transformation (DX)/Green transformation (GX)/Work transformation (WX) for the whole region” to link the Group’s transformation in the areas of digital technology, decarbonization, work styles, and productivity to the regional transformation.

>> Growth strategy (Chiba Prefecture/core market)

Next, for the “outside Chiba” area, we have further increased our presence in the Tokyo metropolitan area, focused on central Tokyo. While controlling risk, we intend to further capture the upside of the Tokyo metropolitan area efficiently and with a sense of speed. In addition to opening new branches in growth regions that neighbor Chiba Prefecture, we will work to enhance early warning management through the use of AI and other technologies while expanding lending as a growth driver. Since opening our new Shinjuku West Corporate Banking Office in June 2024, we have been progressively expanding our network of branches, including the Kyobashi Corporate Banking Office in March 2025. As well as continuing this proactive branch opening strategy going forward, we will use frameworks such as the Chiba-Musashino Alliance and Chiba-Yokohama Partnership to expand our market share in the Tokyo metropolitan area.

Finally, in the “nationwide” area, as a platform provider through collaboration with the TSUBASA Alliance and others, we intend to transform the services and functions into a platform in areas such as apps and AML, including core systems and sub-systems, and further deepen these collaborations and joint efforts to expand those domains, while aiming to improve our top-line revenue and reduce costs together with our alliance banks.

The TSUBASA Alliance has grown to a scale that rivals the megabanks. While taking maximum advantage of its economies of scale and networks, we will boldly and swiftly advance initiatives such as the collaboration and consolidation of various operations.

Three challenges for the Group's further growth

We recognize the following three points as our challenges for realizing the further growth of the Group.

The first point is the enhancement of the retail business. Amid efforts to promote the multi-skilling of personnel engaged in face-to-face proposals, we are making steady progress in our initiatives aimed at transforming the mindsets of those personnel, reskilling, and the optimization of our sales organization. In particular, to make the solid operating base we have built up in our core market of Chiba Prefecture even stronger, we will evolve the needs-based ranking model using customer data and be conscious of one-to-one marketing to increase transaction volumes and expand cross-use. Given the ongoing trend of expansion of the Group's retail business as a whole, as well as aiming to expand gross business profit by further increasing per-customer transactions, we will promote further digitalization to lower the cost per transaction, in our efforts to further improve productivity.

The second point is the enhancement of integrated group management. In our core market, as we maintain our high share of deposits and lending, which are the core transactions with customers, we believe that we can spread the products and services offered by individual Group companies more widely. In addition to the pursuit of synergies with Group companies, by actively investing in new businesses that will contribute to their revitalization and taking maximum advantage of their respective potential, we intend to greatly accelerate the growth of the entire Group.

The third point is the enhancement of the deposits business. With the advent of a world with interest rates, the prolonged low interest rate environment is shifting toward a phase in which deposits carry value, and the importance of attracting deposits is being re-examined. Under these circumstances, along with the increase in the utilization rate of the app, I sense that, through improvements to customer convenience and the revitalization of accounts, the retention rate of individual deposits is on the rise.

In addition, by pursuing our "regional ecosystem strategy," which aims to build an economic zone that will create a virtuous cycle within the region, we expect to be able to improve our engagement with customers and further build up highly sticky deposits.

To address these challenges, it is important for the Group to unite as one for the further enhancement of the customer experience. By serving our customers, and being a dependable presence to them over the long term, we will aim to increase the number of retail and corporate customers who are fans of the Group.

DX as a means of transformation and regional ecosystem strategy

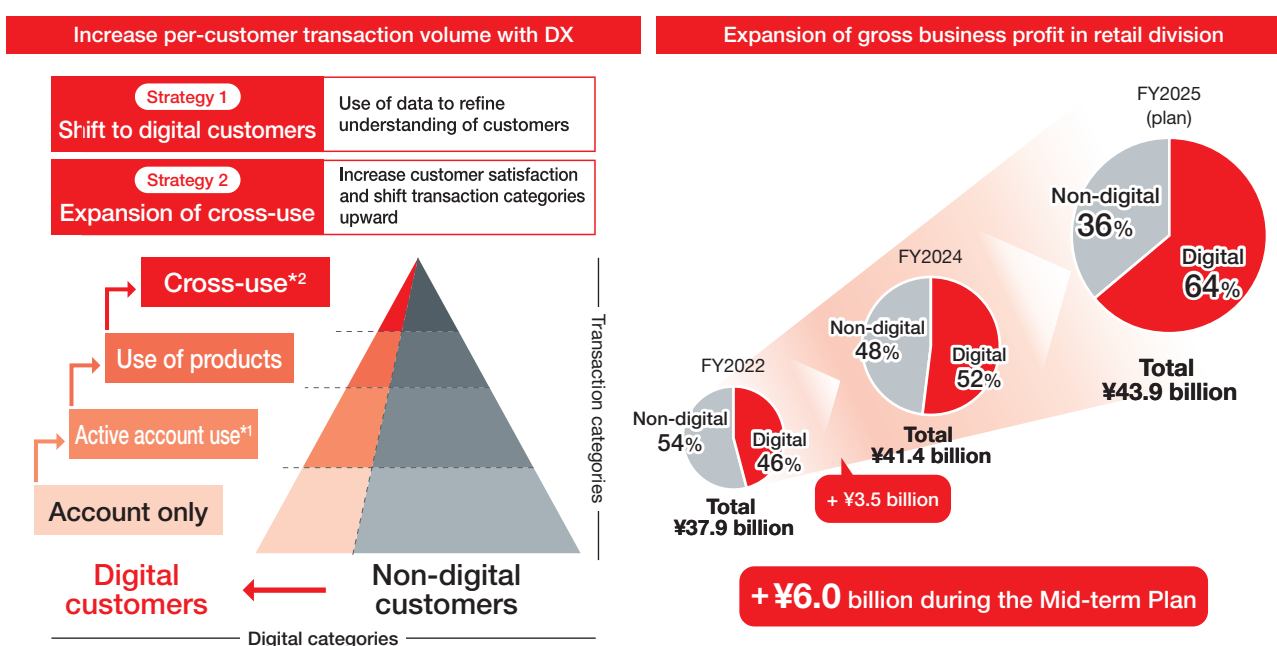

We aim to further improve the customer experience by continuing to offer new products and services that are convenient and beneficial. DX is the means of that transformation, and our "regional ecosystem strategy" will be at the heart of our future strategies.

The Chibagin App serves as the starting point for transactions with our retail customers. By progressively adding financial and non-financial functions to the app to meet customers' needs, we have gained more than 1.2 million registered users, and transactions via the app now account for over 40% of total transactions.

The transition from face-to-face to the app for major transactions is reducing the cost per customer transaction, leading to the improvement of the Group's productivity.

In addition, by realizing our "regional ecosystem strategy," which extends beyond the app to include cashless services, a loyalty program, and non-financial services centered on Chibagin Market, we will stimulate economic circulation among regional customers. We hope to stimulate consumption within the region by encouraging customers to use the points accrued through bank transactions and to use their cards at member stores, as well as delivering useful information to customers via the app to drive customer traffic to those stores. The image we have in mind is of a world that benefits all of us—customers, the local community, and the Group.

>> Enhancement of retail business

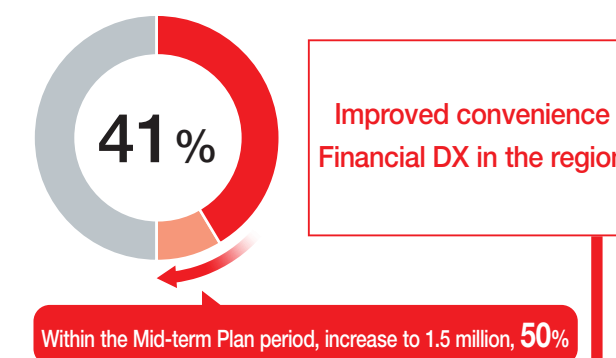

*1. Active account use: Customers that satisfy one of the following conditions: receipt of wages/pension; balance of at least ¥300,000; or use of account transfer

*2. Cross-use: User of at least two types of product

>> Percentage of app registrants among active accounts (as of March 2025)

>> App transactions* as percentage of all transactions (as of March 2025)

* Opening savings accounts, remittance transfers, opening investment trust accounts, opening NISA accounts, card loan contracts

Evolution of our business model with AI

In October 2024, we made the AI solution company, EDGE Technology, part of our group companies. This was the first ever example of a regional bank acquiring a non-financial business through a TOB. We see this as a valuable opportunity to accelerate the advancement of our “DX for the whole region.”

In addition to the further strengthening of one-to-one marketing through the enhancement of products and services, by adding the AI domain to our ICT consulting services, we will be able to support our customers’ business transformation with services of higher quality. We will also promote the improvement of our own operational efficiency.

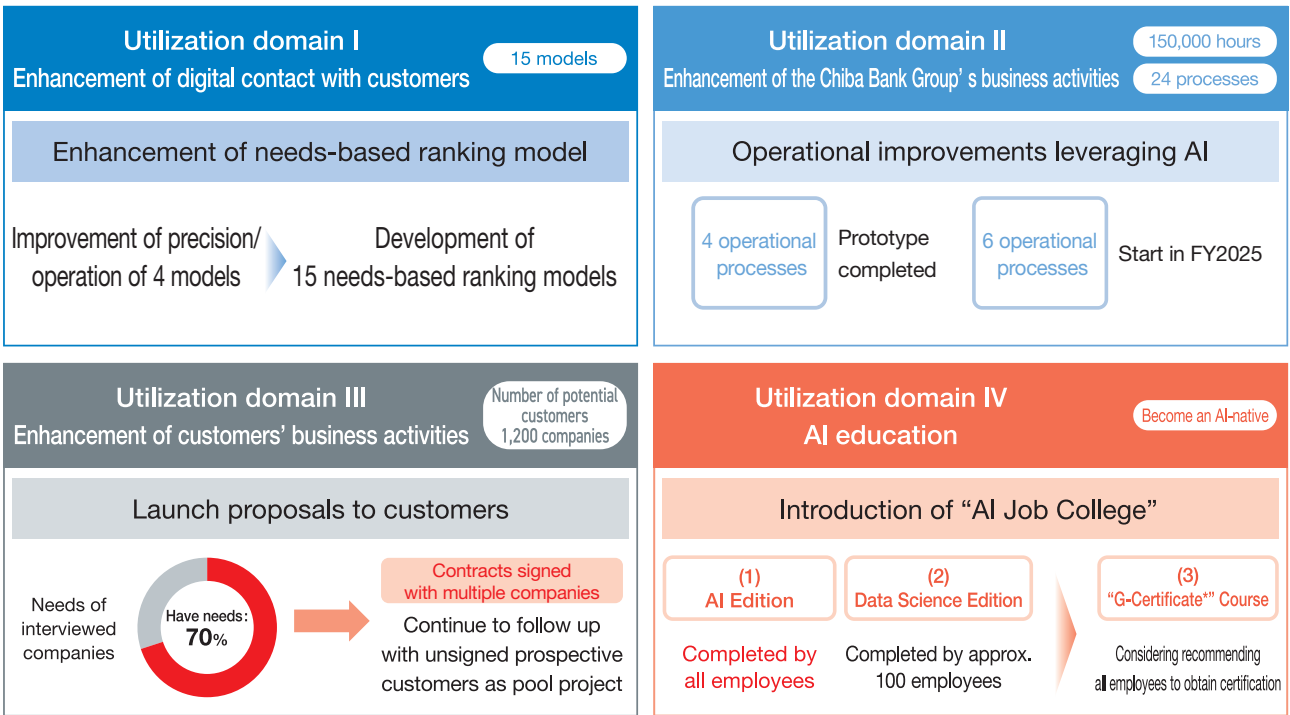

Specifically, we are strengthening the use of AI in four domains. In the first domain, “Enhancement of digital contact with customers,” we are advancing the development of 15 needs-based ranking models. In the second domain, “Enhancement of the Chiba Bank Group’s business activities,” we aim to reduce 150,000 hours of workload by reviewing 24 operational processes using AI. In the third domain, “Enhancement of customers’ business activities,” we are strengthening our approach to approximately 1,200 potential customers.

Finally, in the fourth domain, “AI education,” we are reinforcing AI-related human resource development for the Bank Group’s employees. We have introduced the “AI Job College” educational program provided by EDGE Technology, with all employees completing the basic course and approximately 100 employees completing the specialized data science edition. Furthermore, we have set a goal of achieving 2,000 certifications for the “G-Certificate” conducted by the Japan Deep Learning Association.

With the recognition that these various initiatives will be a major turning point for the Group’s business model, we have positioned this year as “First Year of AI,” and we will aim to realize the transformation of the entire region as an AI-native banking group.

>> DX/AI (collaboration with EDGE Technology)

*Deep Learning for GENERAL: JDLA Certificate, a certificate exam offered by Japan Deep Learning Association (JDLA) for the acquisition of AI and Deep Learning application literacy.

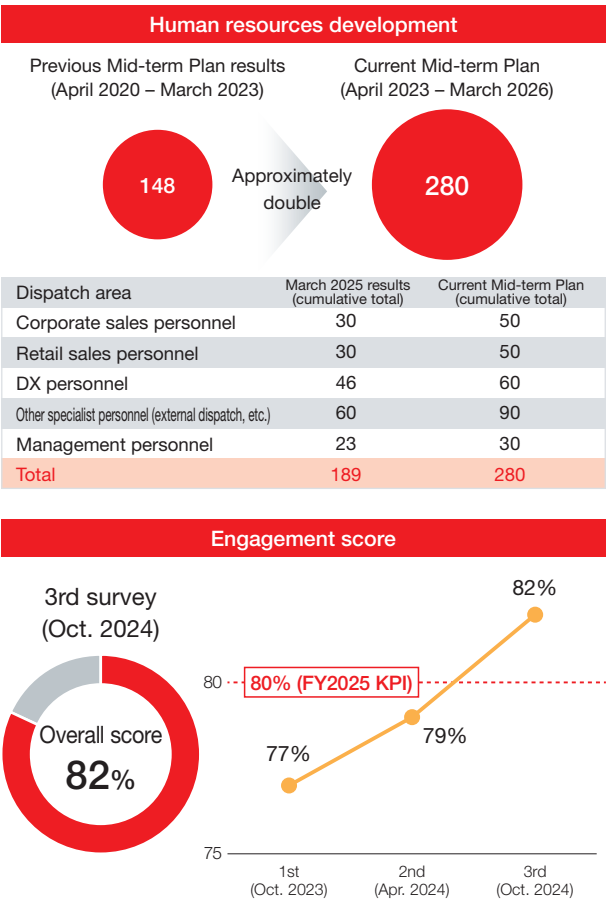

>> Human Capital Supporting Transformation

Pursuit of expertise through advances in human resources strategy

While DX and AI will become our means of transformation, it is our personnel who will support those means. Human capital investment, including in human resources development, is critical to ensuring the Group’s sustainable growth. Amid the growth in non-face-to-face transactions resulting from advances in digitalization, the provision of highly specialized services in face-to-face consulting operations will become a source of competitiveness, which we believe is a significant strength of the Group as a regional bank.

In line with the Group’s Human Resources Strategy, we are fundamentally strengthening our initiatives in human resources development to become a “group of diverse specialists” that realizes customers’ wishes. Leveraging the high degree of specialization thus acquired, as “individual comprehensive consultants,” our personnel will help our individual customers’ prosperous lifestyle through personalized proposals, and as “management assistants” for our corporate customers, they will engage closely with each customer to help solve their management issues and improve their productivity. In such ways, we will become a presence that customers can rely on to meet their needs in all manner of domains.

Additionally, to secure outstanding talent, as well as implementing continuous wage rises and increasing starting salaries, we have fostered management sensibilities in each employee and expanded our stock ownership incentive program so that they may share a common perspective with our shareholders.

Further, in line with the increasing diversity of values, we have stepped up our diversity initiatives to build a resilient and flexible organization. We are also reflecting the employee feedback absorbed directly from engagement surveys and various questionnaires in personnel measures in our efforts to increase employee engagement. We believe that our efforts to create an attractive workplace where all employees can continue to work with high motivation will ultimately lead to the provision of better services to customers, or in other words, to the improvement of the customer experience.

Message from the President

Venturing into new businesses to help improve the customer experience

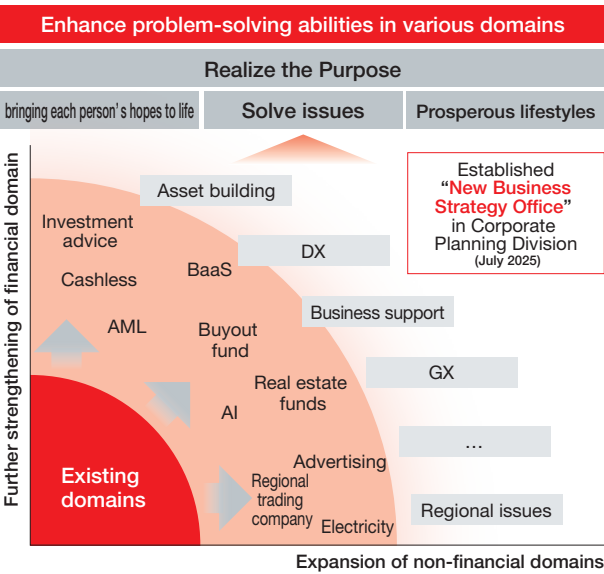

As customers’ needs become more diverse and complex, in our aim to further improve the customer experience, it is essential that we expand our businesses on both financial and non-financial fronts. To this end, we are accelerating our efforts to venture into new businesses.

At Chibagin Market, which operates business as a regional trading company, e-commerce site operations and the crowd-funding business for local products are steadily expanding. Work continues on the full-scale development of systems for the “Chibagin Housing Concierge” housing-related service. In addition, in response to corporate customers’ needs, we are concentrating efforts on the advertising business, real estate fund business, and buyout fund business as we work to deliver high value-added services to our customers.

In response to regional issues, Himawari Green Energy, which operates in the energy business, advanced its power plant projects in the cities of Kimitsu and Choshi in Chiba Prefecture, and we stepped up our “GX for the whole region” initiatives in close collaboration with individual local governments. Also, by incorporating agricultural business, Fresh Farm Chiba, into our group in March 2025, we are working to enhance our problem-solving capabilities in the region’s primary industries. In addition, in the metaverse and NFT fields, we have already partially realized business commercialization and are strengthening our initiatives to provide next-generation services to our regional customers in the future.

To further accelerate our new business initiatives, we established a New Business Strategy Office within the Corporate Planning Division and enhanced our systems for promoting new businesses. We will work on this with greater speed than ever to improve the customer experience and strengthen our responses to regional issues.

Strengthening of new business

Initiatives for business improvement and recurrence prevention

Regarding the progress of the business improvement plan, which is one of the Group’s most important management challenges, the Group united as one to promote initiatives for business improvement and recurrence prevention, and the implementation of all measures was completed. Viewing these initiatives as an opportunity to transform the Group’s organizational culture, we have focused our efforts on the penetration of the Purpose, Vision, and Three Pledges.

Also, in addition to external evaluation to gauge how customers feel about these initiatives, we also focused on internal evaluation of employees’ feelings. We have verified the effectiveness of the initiatives through various questionnaires and surveys, and by steadily running the PDCA cycle, we are facing each challenge squarely.

Further, to transform our organization from its previous top-down style to a bottom-up style, we are working to create a strong organization in which individuals think and act independently. Examples of initiatives in this regard include self-declared target setting by sales branches for the performance award system, and the formulation of the next Mid-term Plan for each sales branch. As these initiatives demonstrate, there is currently a tangible sense that change is happening across the entire Group. We will accelerate these moves further going forward

The Three Pledges — Action principles for achievement of the Purpose and the fulfillment of fiduciary duty —

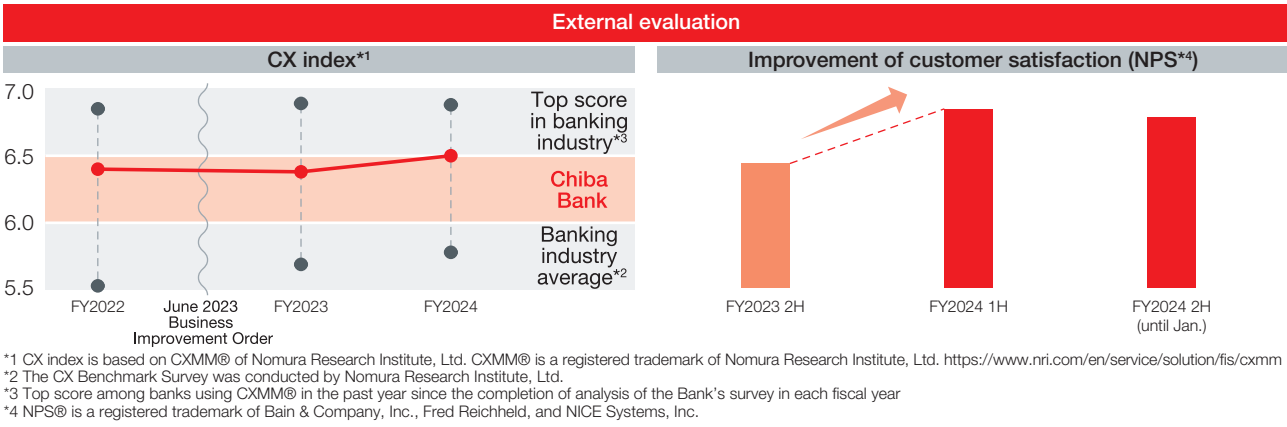

These pledges encourage employees to always pause and consider, before making customer proposals or business decisions, whether their actions contribute to:

realizing
the customer’s wishes

solving the customer’s problems

enabling prosperous
lifestyles for customers

Changes due to business improvement measures and verification of situation and strive to restore the trust that our customers and stakeholders held in us.

Commitment to the sustainable growth of the region

With its proximity to Tokyo, population decline in Chiba Prefecture has been relatively moderate, and the prefecture has a well balanced industrial structure and abundance of tourism resources, making it one of the most favorable markets in Japan. The key to unlocking Chiba’s full potential will be the effective use of AI. We will work toward the realization of “DX/GX/WX for the whole region” from a long-term perspective, raising the productivity of not only the Group, but also our customers and the region as a whole. Our aim in doing so is to achieve sustainable growth alongside the region. Additionally, to strongly advance these initiatives, in April 2025, we appointed a new Group Chief Sustainability Officer (CSuO) and established a new Sustainability Promotion Division.

In preparation for the next Mid-term Plan, which will start next fiscal year, we are proceeding with the formulation with “all-inclusive participation” as our key concept. Rather than top-down directives from head offices, we are adopting a bottom-up approach that values the opinions of each officer and employee of the Group and reflects them carefully in the Plan’s measures. In addition to the boost provided by rising interest rates, through business model transformations driven by AI and strategic investment, we intend to draw up exciting growth scenarios that will exceed the expectations of all our stakeholders, including our customers, shareholders, and employees.

We sincerely appreciate your ongoing support.

Message from the Group CSO

We will achieve ROE above capital costs to enhance corporate value

Takashi Makinose
Director and Managing Executive Officer
(Group Chief Strategy Officer (CSO))

Steady progress in the Mid-term Plan. We will strengthen our efforts to achieve a PBR of above 1

Having achieved the Return on Equity (ROE) target in the Mid-term Plan a year ahead of schedule, we anticipate achieving the level of around 8% ROE (based on shareholders' equity) that we had declared as our target for FY2030 within the current fiscal year. We have steadily improved our ROE by fortifying our existing businesses, venturing into new businesses, and capitalizing on the recent rises in interest rates. However, the Bank's Price Book-value Ratio (PBR) is currently around 0.9, and we aim to achieve ROE in excess of capital costs, that is, a PBR of above 1 at an early stage through further efforts to increase ROE and Price-to-Earnings Ratio (PER).

Increase ROE: We will enhance the Bank Group's strengths and realize highly capital-efficient management

Three strengths

We believe the Bank Group's defining strengths are in three areas: "the operating base," "the financial base," and "alliances."

In terms of the operating base, in Chiba Prefecture, which has a large economy, we hold a large share of individual customers, app registrants, and deposits and loans.

In terms of the financial base, we build a stable management base by keeping Over Head Ratio (OHR), which is a measure of cost efficiency, and non-performing loan ratio low.

In terms of alliances, further deepening the TSUBASA Alliance, Chiba-Musashino Alliance, Chiba-Yokohama Partnership, and our collaboration with Sony Bank will not only improve our top-line revenue, but also contribute to lowering the OHR. By promoting an alliance strategy ahead of other banks, we believe that our ability to generate synergies through collaboration is among the best in the regional banking sector. Going forward, we will continue to strengthen our alliances even further as our most critical differentiation strategy.

Improve RORA

For the improvement of Return on Risk-weighted Assets (RORA), we are strengthening our three initiatives of "investment in high RORA assets," "strengthening of fees and commissions" and "cost control."

In terms of investment in high RORA assets, we are steadily leveraging the rise in interest rates, and RORA on both retail and corporate loans has improved significantly. In addition, profitability of growth investments, such as investments and loans in private real estate funds, which we strengthened under the current Mid-term Plan, is extremely high, contributing to the increase in the bank's overall RORA.

In terms of strengthening of fees and commissions, the expansion of profits that do not leverage risk assets will help to increase RORA. In the current Mid-term Plan, we are expanding contact points with customers on both digital and face-to-face contact points by increasing the number of app users and enhancing our branch network. In the retail division, we are enhancing digital marketing with the use of AI and strengthening one-to-one marketing tailored to each customer. In the corporate division, we have seen a significant increase in advisory services and M&A consultations, and we will further expand corporate solutions income by helping business owners to solve their issues. These initiatives will serve to bolster fees and commissions.

Regarding cost control, OHR is expected to fall to around 45% in the current fiscal year, indicating our maintenance of top-class cost efficiency among regional banks. Assisted by the effectiveness of our alliances, we have been able to achieve extremely high cost efficiency in areas such as system costs. By maintaining investment and cost discipline while continuing to make the necessary investments, I believe that it will be possible to lower our OHR even further. In terms of our non-performing loan ratio as well, in addition to stringent risk management systems and accompanying support to our customers, we will continue our efforts to control credit costs by advancing new initiatives such as the use of AI and linking with other banks' accounts through the corporate portal.

Managing within a target range for common equity Tier 1 capital ratio

In terms of capital management, having maintained adequate soundness, we will promote the effective use of capital towards achieving a target range for the common equity Tier 1 capital ratio. Through the enhancement of the Risk Appetite Framework (RAF), while making rational judgements based on ROE, OHR, and other metrics, we plan to further accumulate risk assets and conduct inorganic investments and DX investments. Regarding shareholder returns, as a result of the steady strengthening of dividends, we have revised our payout ratio to around 40%. Going forward, we will continue to pursue, in a well balanced manner, growth investments aimed at medium- to long-term increases in ROE and further shareholder returns to increase capital efficiency.

Increase PER: Disclose business risks appropriately to lower capital costs and strengthen IR activities

To lower our capital costs, we need to disclose the Bank's business risks appropriately and reduce investors' perceived risk. By lowering our OHR and non-performing loan ratio, whose low levels are already a strength of the Bank, even further and building a stable financial base, we will control earnings volatility and enhance the accuracy of our performance forecasts. In addition, by continuing to enhance our communication of these strengths and our strategies for medium- to long-term growth, we hope to raise expectations of the Bank Group's profit growth and achieve growth that exceeds those expectations.

Working closely with the local community to support bringing its hopes to life

To make the local community one that is able to bring all our stakeholders' hopes to life, including customers, shareholders and employees, the Bank Group will contribute to solving regional social issues. By steadily advancing initiatives in line with management strategy and growing sustainably alongside the region, we hope to realize the further enhancement of corporate value.

Outside Directors, Yasuko Takayama, Takahide Kiuchi, and Ryoji Yoshizawa, alongside newly appointed (in June) Outside Director Mana Nabeshima, held a roundtable meeting to exchange views on a range of topics, including expectations for the next Mid-term Plan (based on the current Plan), growth strategy, governance, and sustainability management.

How do you view this year, as the final fiscal year of the current Mid-term Plan?

Takayama The Group is on track to achieve most of the key financial targets outlined in its Mid-term Plan by FY2025. I see this year as a pivotal moment to lay the groundwork for the next Mid-term Plan. Looking ahead, accelerating inorganic growth, enhancing digital transformation (DX), and investing in human capital will be essential for expanding the Group's non-financial businesses.

The current Mid-term Plan, guided by the theme "Evolution of the customer-focused business model," sets a path toward FY2030. For the next plan, I hope we can take a backcasting approach—envisioning what we want the Group to look like in FY2035 or FY2040 and working backward to define the necessary steps.

So far, the Group has positioned DX, GX (green transformation), and WX (work transformation) as bases of value creation. I hope the Group will leverage its accumulated technologies and regional customer experience know-how to further advance its regional ecosystem strategy.

Yoshizawa I see this year as an opportunity to further build upon the successes of previous years, while simultaneously taking the critical first steps toward resolving the challenges highlighted in the FY2024 financial results.

One significant achievement from the past year was the substantial progress we made in the DX of the banking operations. Leveraging the scale of the TSUBASA Alliance, we advanced the development of our personal banking smartphone application. Furthermore, to strengthen our anti-money laundering and counter-terrorist financing (AML/CFT) measures, TSUBASA-AML Center, a group company, began providing AML/CFT services, entrusted by four banks participating in the TSUBASA Alliance. I highly value this initiative not only for its contribution to the group's profitability but also for its role in improving operational efficiency of Japan's retail banking industry. Also, the addition of EDGE Technology, which offers AI solution services, to our group is another major positive, bringing significant benefits to our internal operations, product development, and customer transactions. We aim to further build upon these successes in the next Mid-term Plan.

On the other hand, a key challenge we face is the need for further evolution of our group strategy. The ratio of the consolidated net income to the non-consolidated net income has been declining, reaching 1.0x in FY2024. This indicates there's still significant room for growth within our group strategy. We need to meticulously examine each business operation, considering both synergies within the Group and the capital costs, to explore opportunities for rationalization and fundamental solutions.

What is your evaluation of the Bank's initiatives to increase PBR?

Yoshizawa To ensure the continued growth and success of the Group, we are boldly taking on new challenges, and central to this endeavor is advancing the risk management capabilities. While we are preparing to embrace necessary risks for growth, we are simultaneously maintaining tight control over those risks, ensuring we can continue to operate with sound and prudent management. For example, while some banks hold a large amount of held-to-maturity bonds to boost interest income, we have selectively limited our exposure in this area, but have consistently generated strong revenue through other conventional measures. Furthermore, our low Δ EVE*¹ (Economic Value of Equity) means our IRRBB (Interest Rate Risk in the Banking Book) ratio*² stood at a very conservative 4.73% as of March 31, 2025. This is well below the 15% limit set by Basel regulations and is a solid performance compared to both domestic and international banks.

Outside Directors Discussion Meeting

Conversely, with a consolidated Tier 1 common equity (CET1) ratio of 15.04% (as of March 31, 2025), our challenge lies in how to effectively leverage this robust capital base to execute the growth strategy. To improve our Return on Equity (ROE), we must continuously scrutinize the Internal Rate of Return (IRR) of both our existing and new businesses, ensuring they are projected to exceed our capital costs over the medium to long term.

Maintaining the lean and prudent management directly enhances the Bank's long-term corporate value, benefiting not only shareholders but all stakeholders. Therefore, we must continue to carefully evaluate the capital costs in our banking operations, aiming to improve our Price Book-value Ratio (PBR).

*1 ΔEVE: The change in a bank's Economic Value of Equity (EVE) in response to changes in interest rate.

*2 IRRBB Ratio: A metric that indicates the amount of Interest Rate Risk in the Banking Book (IRRBB) as a percentage of core capital (Tier 1 capital).

Could you tell us what kind of discussions took place regarding the acquisition of EDGE Technology?

Kiuchi To secure the Group's sustainable growth, actively investing its strong capital base is crucial. The acquisition of EDGE Technology was considered an appropriate use of capital, and all Outside Directors supported it positively.

However, since the bank is unfamiliar with AI business and EDGE Technology relies heavily on freelancers with specialized digital expertise, we carefully discussed the risks, especially given the business model's fundamental differences from banking. To mitigate the risk of losing key talent, we decided to maintain EDGE Technology's existing management and operational systems as much as possible post-acquisition.

Post-merger integration focuses on two key areas: "organizational unification and risk management" and "business promotion and contribution to the Chiba Bank Group's DX." In risk management, efforts are underway to align EDGE Technology's industry-specific risk standards with banking standards.

The Bank is currently generating synergies through AI-driven internal reforms and by offering AI solutions to customers. Key challenges include managing human resources and labor issues related to freelancers, as well as protecting their personal data, which must be addressed in line with new freelance laws.

We anticipate ongoing evaluation of acquisition opportunities and emphasize the importance of balancing active pursuit with careful risk management.

How do you assess the extent to which the Group's Vision, Purpose, and Three Pledges have been embraced across the organization?

Takayama The Bank established its Purpose and Vision in March 2023, aligning with the start of the current Mid-term Plan. Following the Business Improvement Order in June 2023, and driven by the management's strong commitment to transformation, the Group introduced the Three Pledges. These pledges encourage employees to always pause and consider, before making customer proposals or business decisions, whether their actions contribute to:

- realizing the customer's wishes,
- solving the customer's problems, or
- enabling prosperous lifestyles for customers.

The pledges apply across all operations and are easily understood by employees. To support their adoption, management has actively visited branches and workplaces, engaging employees through dialogue and various initiatives, effectively promoting the Purpose and Vision throughout the Group.

We are monitoring the state of that penetration from both internal and external perspectives. Internally, we conduct engagement surveys for employees every six months, through which we have confirmed increasing levels of awareness, understanding, and implementation of the Purpose and other principles. Externally, we annually conduct a customer experience (CX) survey of customers, and the positive changes in employees' behavior are reflected in the metrics of that survey.

The Board of Directors regards embedding the corporate philosophy and transforming corporate culture as key priorities. We will continue to support these efforts by having management provide timely progress reports, while Outside Directors oversee and offer recommendations from a supervisory standpoint.

Yoshizawa Since the second half of FY2024, we've shifted from a system of business goal setting, where headquarters established sales targets, to one where each branch autonomously sets its own goals based on local and current market conditions. This change has enabled us to move towards a more customer-centric sales approach. We believe that by deeply embedding the Purpose, Vision, and Three Pledges, we are genuinely pursuing a customer-focused business model and have truly embraced the mindset of walking alongside our customers.

Mr. Kiuchi, you were recently appointed as Chairperson of the Nomination, Remuneration and Corporate Advisory Committee. What are your thoughts on the strengthening of governance?

Kiuchi Since Outside Directors make up a minority of the Board of Directors, influencing key matters such as executive nominations and compensation can be challenging. To address this, the Bank has established a voluntary Nomination, Remuneration, and Corporate Advisory Committee, primarily composed of Outside Directors. This committee aims to enhance the objectivity, timeliness, and transparency of the Board, thereby strengthening its governance and oversight functions through diverse, independent perspectives.

Outside Directors Discussion Meeting

As Chairperson of the Committee, I see it as my role to foster open and constructive dialogue. Given the Committee's smaller size, discussions tend to be more candid than those in the full Board of Directors meetings. However, a current challenge is that the insights and discussions from the Committee are not always effectively shared with internal directors. I am committed to finding better ways to communicate the essence of these discussions in a clear and accessible manner.

Ms. Nabeshima, you have recently been newly appointed as Outside Director. What kind of role do you hope to fulfill?

Nabeshima Throughout my career, I have worked with banks and securities firms across Japan and overseas, gaining experience in a variety of corporate cultures. I hope to apply this experience to governance through oversight and strategic advice, with the aim of enhancing the Group's corporate value.

While the Group is advancing its DX strategy, rapid societal changes demand further progress. Based on my experience at Singapore's DBS Bank, I believe acceleration requires technology divisions to lead management and the promotion of cross-functional, non-traditional initiatives.

To support new business development, strong governance is essential. Beyond training, robust oversight to make misconduct impossible and prompt issue escalation systems are critical. I will closely monitor risk management from this perspective.

With the recent appointment of a new Group Chief Sustainability Officer (CSuO), what are your expectations for the future direction of sustainability management within the Group?

Takayama Internal consensus on the importance of integrating financial and non-financial information is steadily growing. I believe the appointment of a Group CSuO at this point—when the foundation has been laid—is both timely and strategic. I expect the Group CSuO to take comprehensive oversight of all non-financial domains within the Group.

Sustainability management plays a vital role in enhancing corporate value by building mutually beneficial relationships with stakeholders. At the core of that value lies intangible capital—such as intellectual, natural, human, and social capital, including brand equity. It is crucial for the Group to make these intangible assets more visible and measurable, to expand them, and to link them directly to long-term corporate value creation. Equally important is developing a compelling narrative that shows how each form of capital contributes to corporate value and how it will continue to do so. This will be essential in gaining the trust and support of investors and other stakeholders.

As Chairperson of the Board of Directors, I will continue to ensure that proposals related to management and strategy are thoroughly debated, while also closely monitoring the progress of the Group's value creation narrative and its associated KPIs.

Yoshizawa While we've observed a growing headwind against ESG in the United States, the Bank's commitment to incorporating ESG factors into the management—and more fundamentally, our pursuit of sustainable management—remains unchanged. We firmly believe it's crucial to focus on what is truly more sustainable, considering all stakeholders, and to evolve our practices accordingly.

Change involves both “speed” and “scope,” and generally speaking, a common challenge for Japanese companies is that their changes tend to be slow and limited in breadth. In managing the Group, I want to ensure we support efforts to run the business with agility, unafraid to embrace change while carefully controlling risk, all with the aim of enhancing our corporate value over the medium to long term.

Nabeshima By closely examining whether our business strategies align with the Group's Purpose and Vision and contribute to solving social issues, we can uncover new business opportunities that support sustainability management. At the same time, advancing DX will reduce costs and increase profitability. As our customers realize sustainable management and achieve steady profits, the Group can grow alongside them.

“Impact accounting”—which quantifies the social and environmental effects of a company's activities in monetary terms and integrates them with financial accounting—is gaining attention. By strengthening its approach in this area, the Chiba Bank Group can better define its position among financial institutions and maintain a competitive edge. Advancing sustainability management will also create new pathways for value creation.

Kiuchi The appointment of the new Group CSuO marks a significant advancement in the Group's sustainability management. To not only catch up with peer institutions but also to establish a distinctive identity, the Group must pursue greater originality—especially by reexamining sustainability through the lens of its deep ties to the local community. As global sentiment toward sustainability, particularly in the United States, grows more uncertain, it is all the more important for the Group to strengthen its own approach. This includes reaffirming and revisiting its core principles and policies to ensure a clear, consistent, and community-focused sustainability strategy.

There is also room for improvement in how the Group communicates its initiatives to stakeholders. While the Bank's website provides an explanation of its sustainability management, I see a need for more creativity and clarity in how this information is conveyed. Publishing accessible and engaging materials—such as sustainability reports—will be essential to ensuring stakeholders fully understand the Group's efforts.
